HISTORY OF HOLY FAMILY HOSPITAL

In 1920, the President of St. Catherine's Hospital, Rawalpindi noticed that no female patients were coming for treatment. He discovered that the absence of female doctors was mainly responsible for this. Dr. Anna Dengel, a young Austrian doctor was requested to join the hospital.

When Dr. Anna Dengel reached Rawalpindi, she discovered that women were dying of preventable ailments. Cultural taboos and illiteracy prevented them from seeking treatment from male doctors. After four years of struggle, she was convinced that dedicated and committed female medical staff was urgently needed. Therefore she went to the United States of America to seek help.

By 1925, Dr. Anna Dengel was able to gather the support of four pioneers. From this core group grew the Medical Mission Sisters (MMS). Later in 1936, MMS was recognized as a full-fledged religious congregation with an international mission in health care. The Medical Missions Sisters have now expanded to about 800 members working in different parts of the world.

Dr. Sumit Ray
Medical Superintendent

Meanwhile, she returned to Rawalpindi with her core group of 4 sisters and took over the management of the St. Catherine's hospital. Soon, the top management of the Hospital realised dedicated services of Dr. Anna Dengel and her team and handed over the Hospital to the Medical Mission Sisters. She renamed it Holy Family Hospital, the first hospital of the Medical Mission Sisters.

Later, sometime in 1950, Rev. Mother Anna Dengel was invited by the then Archbishop of Delhi and Shimla to start a general hospital and nurses training programme in Delhi. In February 1953, New Delhi Holy Family Hospital Society was registered and the hospital was built in 21.5 acres land which was donated by the Bishops and Rs. 2 lakh as donation by public. The Medical Mission Sisters also contributed and supervised the construction of the hospital. Efforts were made to raise funds by every means they could think of. Every embassy and business organizations were contacted and many of them supported in building of the hospital.

On 3rd October, 1953 after blessings by His Grace Joseph Fernandes, Archbishop of Delhi-Shimla, the foundation stone ascribed with “Dedicated to the greater glory of God and to the cause of suffering humanity” was laid by Dr. Radha Krishnan, the then Vice-President of India in the presence of first Health Minister of India Ms. Raj Kumari Amrit Kaur, Health Minister of Delhi Dr. Sushila Nayar and eminent citizens of Delhi. Holy Family Hospital was opened to the public on 6th January 1956 with 8 beds which has now expanded to 345 beds. It is now a multispeciality hospital rendering GOPD service to 900 patients and private OPD services to 300 patients, emergency services to 200 patients and about 75 admissions per day. It provides also services in many super-specialty services, Cardiology being the latest. It follows holistic approach, it also provides services in Ayurveda and Homeopathy.

Training of health personnel was emphasized upon from the beginning; Therefore Nursing school was started in 1956 which has now become the Holy Family College of Nursing affiliated to the Delhi University. In 1962, Diploma courses in Medical Laboratory

Technology and Diploma in X-ray Technology were started.

Internship as well as house jobs in Medicine, Surgery, Paediatrics and Obstetrics & Gynecology were recognized by the Medical Council of India and DNB training in these specialties was recognized by the National Board of Examinations in 1996. Efforts are on to start a Medical College under the name of Holy Family Medical College and Hospital.

A Community Health Department was set up way back in 1968 which provides free medical care to thousands of slum dwellers in the 12 slums allotted by the government of NCT of Delhi. Free clinics are also conducted in the department and it participates in the health campaigns of the Delhi Govt.

The Medical Mission Sisters handed over this running hospital to Delhi Archdiocese in 1991 and the hospital since then is managed by the Delhi Catholic Archdiocese. Presently Archbishop of Delhi Most Rev. Anil J. T.Couto is the President of the Society and Fr. George PA is the Director of the Holy Family Hospital, Okhla Road, New Delhi – 110025.
